The Return Of Lord Conistone by Lucy Ashford Miss Verena Sheldon is not sure what is more surprising: the fact Lord Lucas Conistone– the man who broke her heart– has prised himself away from the grasping females in London, or that he still makes her body tingle. At the annual Global Lijun Alliance conference in Tokyo, Tally Bastille makes the first impulsive decision of his life. Others perceive his uktena—the enormous legendary serpent that's his dual-spirit—as a threat, which makes him all too aware that he frightens fellow lijun. But an encounter with a passionate, obviously not-straight otter lijun one evening convinces Tally that he's found his Em'halafi, his destined match. Tally is determined to barrel through all obstacles to make the match happen, including the otter's conservative, traditional family. They rebel against their clan's constant attempts to force an arranged match and wish desperately for someone who will love them. At the conference, Haru is horrified to learn their family has accepted an offer for them, one too lucrative for the clan to refuse. Not only has the Urusar sold Haru to a stranger, but the lijun is also a giant snake and one who believes in the tired old superstitions regarding Em'halafi. Threatened with banishment if they refuse, Haru has no choice but to marry the wealthy American serpent. Back in Tally's home in Wisconsin, Haru and Tally must navigate both the widening gulf between them as they realize how much they've misunderstood about each other, and the tricky politics of the lijun clan Tally leads. Murder, intrigue and increasing hostility threaten to tear apart the little town of Wadiswan and the arranged marriage they've barely managed to begin. -- In this collection of vintage love stories there are neither cell phones nor computers - but love letters that sometimes take weeks to reach their starry-eyed recipients. Legendary German author Lady Courths-Mahler paints a portrait of magical romance, giving a glimpse into the life of beautiful damsels and handsome heroes. Their tender charm will leave your heart singing for more. -- The author's story could have come from one of her novels. Between 1905 and 1939, after marrying and giving birth to two daughters, she became a highly circulated author with her romance novels. As the Nazis refused to publish her work, Hedwig Courths-Mahler stopped writing in 1939. When her daughter was arrested by the Gestapo, the author suffered such great agony, she never wrote again. On November 26, 1950 Hedwig Courths Mahler died on her farm at Lake Tegern without witnessing the ensuing Renaissance of her novels in Germany. While dealing with her parents' failing marriage and her Future Business Leaders of America project, high school senior Kate Blessing, the daughter of a crime boss, is torn between two guys--one of whom is the son of her dad's rival. For some, it's love at first sight. But things don't always work like that. Sometimes people take time getting to know one another before sparks begin to fly. And people can even fall in love with someone they once considered their enemy. Tara Castro finds herself getting all caught up in the magic of discovering a secret room and falling madly in love with someone she initially despised. Is it possible for her to find a soulmate in someone she once thought was heartless? She wouldn't expect to do that, but stranger things have happened. Tara was living in an apartment above a former jewelry store, just across the street from her father's gym on Bank Street. In fact, it was the same apartment her parents lived in when they first got married. She grew up in that neighborhood, and it was her dream to open a dance studio and art gallery where the jewelry store had once been. Her plans seemed perfect and she was ready to pitch them to the new owner of the building, Trey Harper. It would be their first time to meet and nothing went as planned. Tara's first impression of Trey was that of a heartless businessman who didn't seem to care for the dreams or lives of those around him. Though she was discouraged and somewhat hopeless about her dreams coming true, Tara persevered. As time passed, the discouragement and distrust morphed into sparks and the wonderment of true love. She would soon discover God had greater plans for her than she had ever imagined, and along the way she would uncover some secrets the building had been hiding for years. When I met my favorite rock star backstage at his concert, I never expected to leave with a kiss. I also didn't expect the man behind the mask to remind me of my neighbor, Landon Holloway-the guy I haven't seen since I rebound made-out with him two months ago. Is the similarity between the two men just a coincidence? Or is there something more to the boy next door than meets the eye? This novella was previously published in the Sweet Kisses Limited Edition Sweet Romance Box Set. "These four films about adolescence, youth and first love range from the brutal realism of The 400 Blows to the subtle comedy of Stolen Kisses, each of them built around one central character, Antoine Doinel, who grows from an embattled and rejected child. in the first and most famous of these films, to the puzzled, sympathetic and always hopeful young man of the later ones"--Page 4 of cover.
